

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A pocket in a garment having an article-containing space for containing articles, and a top opening, comprising:
a piece of seal cloth having a side sewn in the vicinity of the top opening and at an inside of 5 the article-containing space; fastening means attached both to another side of the piece of seal cloth and to an outside of the article-containing space for releasably sealing the top opening of the pocket; and a bag-like catch extension formed in the vicinity of the sewn side of the piece of seal cloth so as to communicate with the article-containing space, for retaining the articles therein.
10
2. A pocket according to claim 1, wherein the bag-like catch extension has a length being at least one third of a length of the article-containing space.
3. A pocket according to claim 1, wherein the piece of seal cloth is of a material softer than a 15 material of the garment.
4. A pocket according to claim 1, wherein the fastening means comprises a magnet member attached to the outside of the article-containing space and a magnetic object attached to said another side of the piece of seal cloth.
20
5. A pocket according to claim 4, wherein the magnet member comprises a flexible magnet sheet.
6. A pocket according to claim 1, wherein said piece of the seal cloth is lined with a reinforcement piece.
25
7. A pocket according to claim 6, wherein the reinforcement piece is a thin plate of synthetic resin or metal.